On the whole, we are inclined to that the Vice-President think would have done the Republican party fully as much good had h mounted the stage and done pan tomime during the time occupied by his speeches. They will continue to suit Kentucky. the Old or the New, and the fact that we have a few Republicans on the bench lends a zest to the zeal of the Democratic ones to do their best. The Vice-President called Mr. Willson "Governor." This appellation will doubtless be a source of pride to Mr. Willson when he answers his posterity's questions relative to his race for the Gubernatorial honor, with a "Yes, I Ran." If this poor hope, less one is nequainted with race track phraseology (we presume he is, he will hear around the Fulls City these expressions after the election, "Hager wom in a common canter: Augustus Willson also mus." The average merchant of to-day will tell you for no better reason that our styles all come from the English and are tempered down or changed to the whims of a few high-priced tailurs on Fifth Avenue in New York: but such is not the case, and if such WAS a fact there would be no style-we would all be uniformed, and in dividuality in one's appea ance would be lost. Style is not the creation of any two or three men or set of men. It is the accumulation of n onths research. Large combined tailors, such as the Stein-Bloch Co. in Rochester and Hamburger Bros. in Baltimure, send representa tives to Paris, London and the Continent, some to the New York Horse Show to Sherry's, and others to Newport in the height of the season. A lapel is gathered here, a sleeve there, a c llar somewhere else, and so on, All of these parts are to ked over, tried out and boiled down, matched to the different cloths and colours until each is considered perfect. The creations of the different concerns are guarded with the greatest possible care that they may not be copied or imitated by others. Thence the newness of their creations, the difference in appearance, which stamps them leaders in style and tailoring of the world to-day. The close attention paid to our business gives us knowledge of these facts, and that is our reason for advertising these makes and recommending them as the best to be had to our friends and patrons.

We want you to know more clothes facts, which means knowing our clothes, but it can never be unless you visit our store, so do it while the stocks are new and complete.

FRIEND OF THE FARMERS.

Just at this time, American Society of Equity and Dark Tobacco Growers Protective Association are accomplishing so much for the farmers of Kentucky who cultivate tobacco, one of the State's largest crops, it will not be amiss to call the attention of those farmers to the fact that it was a Democratic General Assembly and Democratic officials that made it possible to form such an association in the Blue Grass State. After years of oppression by the tobacco trust, during which time the price had been driven down to the lowest point, the farmers determined to appeal for legislative aid. The Statute law of Kentucky provided against combinations any kind. The matter was submitted to the Legislature by Democratic members. to a place on the law books by Democratic energies, and, under it, the American Society of Equity and Dark Tobacco Growdourished. The trust has attacked the constitutionality of the law in the courts of the State, but it has been upbeld in the lower courts. in which the question of its constitationality has already been presented.
